HOW TO INVEST IN A STRATEGY / PAMM

If it is your first time investing via a Strategy/PAMM system, we recommend you read the tooltips in the "Invest in strategy" to get familiar with fees and how they work.

Invest in strategy

Note: You can view the tooltips by clicking on the small yellow icon.

Tier is a commission the strategy owner takes from the profit depending how much the investor has deposit to his account.

Example:

10% with 1000
20% with 0

If investor deposit is 100, then the strategy owner will take a 20% tier commission if the strategy owner outcome of the closed trades result in a profit (if the trading results in a loss, no tier commission will be charged). If same investor deposit an additional 300 to the same strategy owner, it is still 20%. But if he deposit 800 again, then his total investment is above 1000, and the strategy owner will take 10% commission.

The tier commission is calculated once per day using the difference in strategy balance between last rollover and current in case of profit.

Stoploss is the limit that the invested balance can drop to before it's automatically withdrawn from the strategy and transferred back to investment account. In case the balance is lower than the stop loss then the remaining funds is transferred. Since this is handled at rollover this can result in the investor losing more money than the stop loss setting.

Close

The stop loss value is meant to mitigate the risk for an investor of losing the entire investment value.

During the nightly rollover for the strategy, all investment balances are calculated based on the daily change in strategy value.

If your investment value then is lower than the stop loss setting, your investment will be immediately cancelled and the remaining value will be returned to your investment account.

As an example, if on previous rollover your value of investment was 10,000 and your stoploss is set to 9,500 nothing happens.

If then on new rollover, your updated investment balance is 9,300, then stoploss will be triggered.

Max stop loss is an aggregated value of your existing invested amount in this strategy plus the new amount.
